The June term of court for Addison county came to an end at 2:30 o'clock on Friday afternoon last, having been in all less than four working days in length. Cases which we have not hitherto reported were disposed of in this way: Civil—J. P. Durant vs. G. Harrington and trustee, H. C. Sessions, trustee dispendent continued. M. B. Walker and wife vs. Abel Walker, surviving partner of J. B. & A. Walker, rule for bail on plaintiff, and trial at next term or plaintiff non-suited; Wm. C. Piper, apt., vs. Leslie A. Sparks, judgment on report for plaintiff of 85 and 85 costs; John Mack, Jr., by his next friend, John Mack, vs. George C. Keisey, et al., costs; John Mack, Jr., by his next friend, John Mack, vs. George C. Keisey, et al., motion for continuance by plaintiff granted; B. B. Kirby vs. E. C. Smith, judgment by default for plaintiff, clerk to assess; Benedict & Bird vs. John W. Wooster and trustee, judgment for plaintiffs and trustee discharged without costs; Charles Adams vs. T. C. Middlebrook, judgment for plaintiff of 877.56 and costs, and exceptions by both parties. In town of New Haven vs. town of Middlebury, a pauper case involving the question which town was liable for the support of Charles Bartlett, judgment was rendered for the plaintiff town, which had been beaten below, and the damages awarded were 872.10.

Divorce cases on the old docket as fol-awarded were $72.10.

Divorce cases on the old docket as follows were continued, as of course the six on the new entry docket were under the law: Henry McMaster vs. Josephine McMaster, H. O. Cudworth vs. Sarah A. Cudworth. Charles M. Robbins vs. Cora B. Robbins and Jennie Cook vs. Henry G. Cook. These discrete as a ware distributed. Cook. These divorce cases were dismissed, without prejudice: Olivia G. Cook vs. Charles B. Cook, John F. Dyer vs. Elizabeth M. Dyer, and Victoria Freegard vs. Charles Freegard. In Ellen Converse vs. Geo. W. Converse the petitionee defaulted, but the Court, after a full hearing of the facture and first-class work. The above is a chance to buy good work at less than cost, and will not be open long. As soon as we get the money wanted the sale will end.

Respectfully,

The above petitioner's case, refused to grant a bill and the bill was dismissed. Divorces were granted in these cases, for the causes named in each: Antoine Firkey vs. Philena Firkey, bill granted by default for wilful desertion; Almira Stevens vs. Eli Stevens, bill granted for interesting the causes of the petitioner's case, refused to grant a bill and the bill was dismissed. Divorces were granted in these cases, for the court, after a full hearing of the petitioner's case, refused to grant a bill and the bill was dismissed. Divorces were granted in these cases, for the causes named in each: Antoine Firkey vs. Philena Firkey, bill granted by default for wilful desertion; Almira Stevens vs. Eli Stevens, bill granted for interesting the case of the petitioner's case, refused to grant a bill and the bill was dismissed. This was the long-est case of any kind heard during the term, and took up the whole of Thursday afternoon. Sarah J. Crane vs. Clarence F. Crane, bill granted by default for adul-tory and the periflorer allowed to retry, and the petitioner allowed to resume her maiden name; Josephine L. Varney vs. Milo S. Varney, bill granted by default for intolerable severity, with alimony, and petitioner given possession of her two minor daughters. This is a somewhat noted Bristol case, in which the petitionee, after having been for twen-ty-five years married, deserted his wife and is supposed to have gone off with an-

Only two cases, both of which were criminal, were tried by jury during the term. The conviction of Alfred Leno of Salisbury Plains of burglarizing the house of Samuel Grovenor has already been noted. Leno was sentenced to serve one year in the house of correction in Rutland and another indictment for a similar offence is hanging over him. In State vs. Willie Croke, charged with burglary at East Middlebury, a brief trial was had, and the jury did not waste much time before reporting a verdict of "not guity."

Other State cases were thus disposed of: State vs. Frank Steadman, re-spondent pleaded guilty of breach of the peace and was fined $5 and costs, which was paid; State vs. Carleton Field, apt., intoxication, continued; State vs. remedies without seeing me.
